

SHERMAN'S PROPHECIES.

"John Sherman says that the re-monetization of silver will make the greatest financial panic ever known."

"Well what of that?"

"But Sherman is the leading financier of the United States."

"What makes you think so?"

"He always talks on finance."

"How many financial prophecies has he made in the last twenty years?"

"Guess about ten a year."

"Did you ever know a single one of them to come true?"

"Can't say, never investigated."

"If you can point out a single one that has come true I'll give you one hundred dollars. Now name it."

"Can't recall any that ever did."

"Then why in thunder do you call him a great financier?"

"Don't know, other people all say so."

"Did you ever hear anybody but the Wall Street firms say so?"

"Guess not."

"Why should the people keep on believing in such a rank humbug and traitor to the interests of the country?"

"Dunno."

"Ain't it time about we thought a little for ourselves on the money question?"

"Looks that way."

"Then isn't it about time you quit shouting for old Sherman?"

"I can't quit all of a sudden you know."

"Why can't you?"

"Well he's a good Republican and I can't go back on the grand old party."

THE CHEEKY FIELD.

Justice Stephen J. Field, in his dissenting opinion declaring the whole of the income tax law as unconstitutional, argues that the law is invalid in that it authorizes a tax upon the salaries of the Judges of the Courts of the United States, which is against the declaration of the Constitution that their compensation shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

No judge on earth but Field would dare make such an unblushing point as this in a decision. It takes the breath of an ordinary man away. But Field has been doing these things with absolute impunity for years, and with the biggest corporation in the United States at his back, he is to-day a good deal bigger man than the President and more powerful in Congress.

We have no doubt that should the time come that the big trusts would want to abolish both houses of Congress in order to defeat inimical legislation, they could bring a mandamus case before Field and he would in twenty-four hours dig up a law beneath which he could prorogue Congress and throw every member in jail who refused to go home.

He is the tool of the rich on the Supreme Bench and has done their bidding like a slave ever since he was there. He has been openly charged with specific acts of corruption and bribe-taking, over and over again, time, place and amounts designated, but he smiles at his accusers, goes on piling up wealth and then calmly refuses to pay taxes on his income.

The APPEAL has received the speech of Joseph C. Sibley of Penn., delivered in the House of Representatives, Jan. 8, 1895. Any one who reads it will not wonder why he has been selected as a leader of the Silver party in 1896. He is a Silver man from the very head waters of Silver Creek. It was in this speech that he said:

I am not talking here for the benefit of men who would rather ride to hell in a handcart than to walk to Heaven supported by the staff of honest industry, as it has been said. I am not talking for the benefit of those people who place more value upon a bobtail flush than they do upon a contrite heart.

Spain has discovered that it is no small task to subdue the Cuban rebels. The insurgents appear to gather strength and courage with every assault made by the royal troops. It is probable that when the truth is known and the censorship in the news avenues is broken, it will be found that the Cuban rebels are stronger by far than has been reported, and that the extent and importance of the uprising has not been really known outside of the official headquarters of the military Governor of the Island.

If Heney isn't secured by the Government there is little likelihood that the Mint thieves will ever wear the stripes.

Another battle between armor and projectiles has been fought. This time the projectiles meet all requirements. A shell went through seven inches of armor plate and exploded where it would, had there been a ship behind the armor, have done the most good.

When a public man is called "Honest Bill," or "Old Reliable Jack," it is high time to investigate his accounts.
